

Although LECs are not the only telecommunications option available to consumers they continue to hold a dominant position as evidenced by market share and other measures. If the FCC lifts the dominant classification from the Local Exchange Carriers (Bells) competition to serve the public will be greatly reduced and consumers will suffer.